

UW without Borders

"All it takes is one spark, one seed to change the world" – Tim Miller, PhD student, UW-Madison

SUMMER WORKSHOP
Tuesday, June 29, 2010
8:30 to 11 a.m.
On Wisconsin Room,
Red Gym

Please join us in a participatory process to shape the UW without Borders proposal and move the program further towards reality!

Come if you are:

- already doing interdisciplinary service learning (local, national, or global)
- interested in doing interdisciplinary service learning

Objectives of the workshop:

- Review of UWWB Proposal: This will be a chance to review the proposal deeply, give constructive feedback and, in effect, make it your own.
- Endorse or "sign on" to it if the concept resonates with you and you'd like to join our advocacy efforts to promote this type of program.
- Address the following questions:
 1. What can a campus entity do to facilitate your interdisciplinary service learning activities?
 2. Would you like to be part of a UWWB "joint learning community" on interdisciplinary service learning?
 3. Would you be willing to document your work as a case that can be used for fundraising?

We will also have someone on hand to explain the Morgridge Center's "Morgridge Match Challenge Grant" program funds opportunity for service learning.

Continental breakfast provided

Workshop co-sponsored by:

The Morgridge Center for Public Service and the Division of International Studies
